MEDICAL RECORDS OFFICE ASSISTANT AS A CAREER

Program Instructors: Darrelyn Miller, (360) 538-4161; Vickie Bonneville, (360) 538-4144

Medical Records Office Assistants are medical office professionals who capably perform a number of tasks in a wide variety of settings used to keep the offices in medical practices running efficiently. At the front desk, the Medical Records Office Assistant greets patients and other visitors, such as family members. The assistant verifies personal data about the patient, explains the fees that will be charged for services, collects payments, and guides the patient through their medical office encounters.

When scheduling, the Medical Records Office Assistant answers the telephone, schedules appointments, and forwards telephone calls according to office procedure. Critical to the efficient operation of the office, the Medical Records Office Assistant creates and maintains patient medical records, stores and retrieves the records for use during encounters with physicians and keeps the records up to date through diligent attention to detail. The performance of administrative tasks varies widely office to office and may include opening and sorting mail, composing routine correspondence, transcription of physician dictation, ordering of supplies, assuring that billing information reached the billing service efficiently, scheduling surgeries, coordinating the physician's meetings, hospital and office schedules. The Medical Records Office Assistant plays an important part in the business routine of the medical office including gathering patient information and signatures, filing insurance claim forms, coding diagnoses and procedures, reviewing insurance payments and helping patients understand insurance procedures.
